Fayth

I am not sure if I have the information on Elizabeth Bosanko. I have information stored on disk and I have other information I received from Tamsin Eva, who lives in London, Eng. There is a woman who lives in Wisconsin by the name of Barbara Smith who is working on the same family lines. I think she lives near Madison. I will look through all the stuff I have and maybe I will have more information on E. Bosanko. I was surfing the genealogical web and I put in family names to see what was out there and your e-mail address came up when I put Bosanko in.

I will be going to Grassvalley, CA this week and I will get you an address for the Empire Mine. They will research the archives for articles written in local papers for the names of men that worked the mine. I know for sure there were some Bosankos working in that mine. Just outside of Grassvalley lives a man named Leroy Bosanko. I will gather up all the information I can get and I will send it to you. It may take me a couple of weeks to gather it all. There is another woman in Arlington Texas and she also is working on the same family lines. Can't remember her first name, but her last name is Lord.

If you get any information I could use, could you please send it to me.

Thanks,

Patrick James

Patrick

What wonderful information. Do you know what Bosanko family Elizabeth came from?

How did you find my e-mail address. Did you see it on my BOSANKO Web Site?

Attached are the pictures of the problems we had with the Counter top Transformation kit.

As I told you we purchased 1 kit, it was to cover 50 sq Feet, We had exactly 50 sq feet of counter top. We applied the adhesive as directed, but there was not enough adhesive for all the counters. We put the chips on as instructed. We purchased another kit to finish up with the adhesive. Both of the kits where listed a Onyx. We then had some touch up area to do on the 1 st 2 counter tops we had done. We followed the direction and as you can see in the picture the chips where a different color. We had 1 whole counter top to do with the addition adhesive and chips. We applied the chips and as you can see in the picture the counter top is a different color, there are more gray chips in it and it is much lighter. I am very unhappy with this product. These counter tops are not acceptable to use in any kitchen. I would like my money back. Please let me know what you need to refund my money.

Sincerely

Elizabeth

William and Eva James, natives of Cornwall, England, came to the United States around or before 1832 with three children and settled at Dodgeville, WI. William was a blacksmith in England, but after coming to America he became a farmer, fought in the Black Hawk War and built and operated a flouring mill on Otter Creek. He was a staunch Republican and after becoming naturalized held the office of justice of the peace in Dodgeville, where both parents died the same month and year.

Psychiatry, 2000). Finally, chemical restraint uses medication to control behavior or restrict a patient's freedom of movement. This type of restraint is typically used only in institutional or hospital programs; it has evolved only in the past 40 years as a result of developments in psychotropic medications.

Today, physical restraint is used in numerous professional settings including medical and psychiatric facilities, law enforcement and correctional facilities, and schools. These different types of restraint can be used with both adults and children in the event of emergency situations stemming from aggressive, violent, or dangerous behavior or as a precaution against such behavior.

The primary focus of this article is on the use of ambulatory or manual restraint as an intervention by educators in schools. There are numerous instances in which mechanical restraint has been used in educational settings, but its use will be addressed only in the context of some court decisions and policies that relate to physical restraint. While some might include confinement, such as that which occurs in time-out rooms, as a form of mechanical restraint, it is beyond our scope to address that controversial issue here. Since chemical restraint is not typically used in schools, it is not addressed here.

History

The use of physical restraint originated in the psychiatric hospitals of France during the late 18th century. Restraint procedures were developed by Philippe Pinel and his assistant Jean Baptiste Pussin for the same intent it is used today, as a means of preventing patients from injuring themselves or others (American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, 2000; Fisher, 1994; Weiner, 1992). From their initial usage, mechanical and manual restraint have been controversial procedures. Almost immediately after the procedures became popular, a nonrestraint movement was started in England in an attempt to prevent physical and often brutally aversive mechanical restraint from being used on psychiatric patients in hospitals (Jones, 1972; Masters et al., 2002; Scull, 1979). In response, a Lunacy Commission was established in 1854 to monitor and regulate the use of seclusion and restraint in asylums. In contrast to England's decreased use of restraint during this time frame, the United States viewed physical restraint as a form of therapeutic treatment and adopted it as an accepted practice for dealing with violent patients (Masters et al., 2002; Tomes, 1988).

For many years, law enforcement and correctional agencies have employed physical restraint and related conflict deescalation procedures as tools in apprehending and managing prisoners. Physical restraint also has a long history in hospitals and psychiatric institutions, particularly in the clinical treatment of violent persons (Romoff, 1985). The use of physical restraint has been applied to children with emotional disturbance since the 1950s, and it was included in a list of "techniques for the antiseptic manipulation of surface behavior" compiled by Redl and Wineman (1952). Redl and Wineman stated explicitly that physical restraint should not be used as, nor should it be associated with, physical punishment. They stated that a child's loss of control should be viewed as an emergency situation in which the educator or clinician should either remove the child from the scene or prevent the child from doing physical damage to himself or herself or others. The person performing the restraint should remain calm, friendly, and affectionate while attempting to maintain a positive relationship with the child, thereby providing the opportunity for therapeutic progress once the child's crisis subsides.

Standards and Guidelines for Using Restraint

In most medical, psychiatric, and law enforcement applications, strict guidelines govern the use of physical restraint. Often these standards include accreditation requirements from governing bodies such as the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations or other agencies such as the National Association of Psychiatric Treatment Centers for Children (Cribari, 1996) and the American Academy of Pediatrics (1997). These requirements have resulted in widespread training and certification for staff in these programs.

Unfortunately, there has been no such accreditation requirement for schools or many other child care agencies. The lack of these commonly accepted guidelines or accreditation standards in schools makes those who use physical restraint more susceptible to misunderstanding and abuse, let alone improper implementation. To make matters worse, school staff may lack training in effective

Physical Restraint in School

Joseph B. Ryan and Reece L. Peterson
University of Nebraska–Lincoln

ABSTRACT: The current emphasis on educating children in the least restrictive environment has resulted in the use of physical restraint procedures across all educational placement settings, including public schools. Since its initial use, restraint has been controversial. Professionals who use physical restraint claim that it is necessary to safely manage dangerous behaviors. Child advocates, however, argue that far too many children suffer injury and death from the very staff charged with helping them. The authors review research literature, legislation, and court decisions on topics related to the use of restraint in schools and identify position statements and recommended practices from nationally recognized professional organizations and advocacy groups. Recommendations are given for research, policy, and procedures for the use and practice of physical restraint in schools.

■ A headline of the Austin, Texas, American-Statesman Staff stated that a 14-year-old boy died after being restrained in a classroom by his teachers. According to a preliminary autopsy, the child succumbed to an intense amount of pressure to his chest (Rodriguez, 2002). Unfortunately, newspapers across the nation carry similar stories. The exact number of deaths caused by physical restraint remains in dispute. The Hartford Courant, a Connecticut newspaper, reported that 142 restraint-related deaths, 33% of which were caused by asphyxia, occurred in the United States over a 10-year period (Weiss, 1998). The U.S. Government Accounting Office (GAO) stated in 1998 that an accurate estimate was impossible because only 15 states had established reporting procedures for such incidents. Based on the information available, the GAO estimated that there were 24 restraint-related deaths in the United States among children and adults in 1998 (U.S. Government Accounting Office, 1999). More recently, the Child Welfare League of America (CWLA) estimated that between 8 and 10 children in the United States die each year due to restraint, while numerous others suffer injuries such as bites, damaged joints, broken bones, and friction burns (CWLA, 2002). There is no precise way to measure the number or extent of the injuries to children and also to staff as a result of the use of restraint.

In this article we review and provide a brief summary of research literature, legislation, and court decisions related to physical restraint used in school settings. We also identify position statements and recommended practices from nationally recognized professional organizations and advocacy groups. Finally, we make recommendations regarding needs for research, policy, and procedures for the use of physical restraint in schools.

Definition

As a professional term, restraint is defined as any physical method of restricting an individual's freedom of movement, physical activity, or normal access to his or her body (International Society of Psychiatric and Mental Health Nurses, 1999). The term is sometimes used to address three different types of restraint procedures: mechanical, ambulatory, and chemical. Mechanical restraint entails the use of any device or object (e.g., tape, tiedowns, calming blanket, body carrier) to limit an individual's body movement to prevent or manage out-of-control behavior. Ambulatory restraint is also known as manual restraint or "therapeutic holding" (American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Pediatric Emergency Medicine, 1997). It involves one or more people using their bodies to restrict another individual's body movement as a means for reestablishing behavioral control and establishing and maintaining safety for the out-of-control client, other clients, and staff (American Academy of Child and Adolescent

Subject: William BOSANKO 1808/Eliz BRAY

Hello list members,

I was wondering if anyone could help me. I am looking for Christening/birth record for WILLIAM BOSANKO b. 1808 in St Agnus, and his wife ELIZABETH BRA b. 1806. According to the 1871 census they were living in Gwennap . They do not appear on the 1881 census and I have no access to any others. They married on 13 feb 1836 in Gwennap according to the IGI. They had a son RICHARD BOSANKO b. 19 mar 1843 in Gwennap . He married MARY JANE VERRAN b. 24 Aug 1845 and had 3 children CAROLINE BOSANKO b. 1866 ; ELIZABETH BOSANKO b. 1870 and WILLIAM BOSANKO (my GGrandfather)b. 1871 all in Gwennap .

If anyone could help me I would be very grateful. Also if anyone is connected to the above family I would love to hear from you.

Many thanks,

Christine Pitts (Bristol U.K)

Subject: BOSANKO family

Hi,

I am indebted to Connie Saunders <dceecows@burgoyne.com> for providing me with your e-mail address and the information that you are compiling/maintaining a list of BOSANKO surnames.

Sarah BOSANKO (b. abt 1771) of Crowan, Cornwall was my Gt.Gt.Gt. Grandmother who married John Corlyon of ^{b 1768 d 1800} Coverack (10 Apr 1793 at St Keverne) and I am a direct descendant of their eldest son John.

I would be pleased to have details of how your 'list' operates and in particular to learn if you have any other information on Sarah and her ancestors as I am finding it difficult to obtain any knowledge of her.

Kindest regards,

Joan Lightfoot (Winsford, Cheshire, England)
